ORGAN RECITAL

The distinguished guest organist, Heinrich Fleischer, will give the next organ recital in the Chapel on Sunday afternoon, February 5, at 4:00 o'clock. Dr. Fleischer, a direct descendant of Martin Luther, was born in Eisenach (Thuringia, Germany), the birthplace of Johann Sebastian Bach and the city where Martin Luther spent decisive years of his life. From his early years, he was surrounded by the heritage and cultural atmosphere created by these two great men. In Leipzig, where he received his Ph.D. in musicology, he studied with Thomaskantor Dr. Karl Straube, Germany's greatest organist since Bach and holder of Bach's position at St. Thomas' Church. Three years after Dr. Fleischer's graduation, Straube called him back to the staff of the Leipzig State Academy of Music as organ teacher, and at 25, he became the youngest professor of that famous conservatory, the center of German organ playing.

In 1918, the political situation forced him to leave Leipzig, which is located in the Eastern Zone of Germany. He found asylum in Ravensburg, the historic, old town in South Germany. There he founded and directed a Bach Chorus and was organist of the town church. However before long, in 1949, he answered an invitation to the U. S., where he now holds the positions of professor of organ and Lutheran church music at Valparaiso University and organist at Rockefeller Memorial Chapel, the University of Chicago. During the years since, Dr. Fleischer has made himself a reputation in this country as an organ teacher, lecturer, editor, and organist. He has won special recognition for his interpretation of the organ music of J. S. Bach.
